

Our vision – a rolling chain of satisfaction

From production to end user, our vision is clear: Everyone who takes part in our journey, from our employees to our customers, should experience the joy of quality products that make a difference. Together we fulfill a social responsibility, where each link in the process strengthens the whole.

From wheelchair to cargo bike – a journey of innovation and passion

Our story began with the development of a multifunctional wheelchair that put functionality and user adaptation at the center. Over the years, we have also had the pleasure of offering well-known recumbent bikes, regular bikes and electric bikes from various suppliers. This broad experience laid the foundation for the development of the Frembringer bikes – in-house developed cargo bikes designed to meet modern transportation needs in a wide area, from Nordic conditions to the European market.

From experience to innovation

The experience we have gained through cooperation with various suppliers and customers has been invaluable. This has given us the knowledge and creativity to design the most functional cargo bikes, adapted to a diverse range of needs and industries.

A team with a shared vision

Our success is the result of a dedicated team with a deep interest in bicycles and a burning passion for creating solutions that work. We have designed our products with both private and business users in mind, and we are proud to share success stories from satisfied customers who have experienced improved quality of life, reduced costs and increased efficiency thanks to our cargo bikes.

Real-life photos and stories

On this web page you will find photos and videos that show how our bikes are used by both private customers and businesses. These stories are a tribute to our customers and their trust in our products.
